Society for Pediatric Interventional Radiology

Coming off the heels of the extremely successful SPIR 2018 meeting in Maui, Hawaii, the 2019 SPIR scientific meeting will once again bring together pioneering pediatric interventional radiologists from around the world, including all the major centers in North America, Europe, and around the world.

This meeting is being held at the Grand Hotel Krasnapolsky in Amsterdam, Netherlands on October 2 – 4, 2019 and will provide an opportunity for industry partners to meet with practicing pediatric interventional radiologists representing the majority of the children's hospitals around the world. The scientific program will feature diverse pediatric interventional radiology topics including interventional oncology, venous interventions, interventional management of vascular anomalies, trauma interventions and neuro-interventional radiology. The diverse speaker will include guest speakers with medical, surgical and interventional expertise.

A major part of our prior success has been outstanding corporate support for our prior educational programs. We look forward to your participation in this amazing symposium!

Dr. Manish Patel
SPIR President

About the SPIR

The SPIR was founded by a small group of dedicated physicians who were passionate about advancing the practice of image-guided procedures in infants and children. Early conversations began at the 2006 Pediatric Interventional Radiology Symposium (PIRS) meeting in Toronto. Soon thereafter, at the March 2007 Society of Interventional Radiology (SIR) meeting in Seattle, formation of a new society dedicated to Pediatric IR was proposed. After the Society of Pediatric Radiology (SPR) meeting in Miami in May 2007, an election was held. Seven international board of directors were chosen. Professor Jim Donaldson was elected as our first SPIR president. In May 2008 the first SPIR bylaws were officially approved by the inaugural SPIR board of directors. The board of directors spent the next year addressing topics of concern to SPIR membership and planning the first meeting of our society. With the help of many SPIR member volunteers, our inaugural meeting was held in Napa Valley, California, in October 2009. Early leaders felt it important to include anyone who wished to participate, and our spirit of inclusivity remains with us today.
